

Rightsizing your IT estate by optimizing your license and asset use

Where does a lack of visibility lead?

Wasted spend

Underutilized resources

Increased audit risk

The rapid proliferation of SaaS within organizations is contributing to the chaos. Historically, IT has been the central hub for all technology purchases. However, with SaaS and other cloud license and application purchases now regularly being made by anyone with a credit card, IT no longer has complete knowledge of all the assets in the environment. This presents one of the most daunting challenges as organizations continue their digital transformation journey.

Complications slow down IT operations

The lack of comprehensive visibility becomes apparent when IT is not involved in all the organization's technology purchases. The complexity increases when IT needs to manage assets for larger organizations with a global footprint, or when organizations have undergone recent mergers and acquisitions. Without a high-level view of what's happening within the total IT environment, managing IT assets grows increasingly daunting.

IT asset optimization made easy

Flexera One is our SaaS-based IT management solution designed with and for organizations with highly complex hybrid environments. With Flexera One, you can visualize your entire estate and make data-driven IT decisions from on-premises to SaaS to the cloud—all from a single user interface.

Complex IT can be costly

Business leaders serious about optimizing costs need to ensure they have full visibility of their IT environments in order to make better-informed business decisions. But the growth of disruptive technologies, including SaaS and cloud, is creating chaos in complex IT environments.

Rightsize your resources

Flexera One provides a consolidated view of license utilization and spend within your organization's IT environment. And when you automate license use, it becomes easy to identify underutilized assets. With Flexera One, you can reclaim or disable any underutilized licenses, so your organization can rightsize resources by eliminating IT waste.

Flexera One gives you visibility into any overspending within your IT environment, helping you reduce licensed software costs. And you can use this information to identify contracts to renegotiate. Flexera One also enables management of at-risk licenses by vendor in a single view. You can track the amount of spend and find software assets vulnerable to audits.
